Excerpt: .hundred and fifty; while California, estimating its population at six hundred thousand, contains only a fraction over three; and of this infinitesimal population five-sixths live in cities, towns and villages. I can t see how any man could make this statement, with a full knowledge that it might reach the eye of Prof. Blake, Prof. Newberry, or some other distinguished man who knows it is only a play upon words. He argues here, and compares population, productions, and area, with Italy, England, and Ireland, as if the whole Territory of California was, by any means, capable of being cultivated; when the fact is, as is well known, that by no system of possible or probable irrigation, within the next hundred years can, or will 10,000,000 acres be reclaimed, irrigated, or cultivated in California. The very statement he afterwards makes, in regard to the six...
